WHY THE MAYOR SWORE SO.

HE REAVES A BUSHEL OF SIGHS OF CR CONSTABLE'S " BIG HEAD."

Says He Distince That Man Personally-Told Him, "I Hope to God You'll Never Sct Pool in This Office Again"-What Should an Offi-

The peace that followed the violent outbreak of profabity in the office of his Honor the Mayor on Thursday afternoon, when Superintendent of Buildings Constable called on him, continued yesterday. The violence of the Mayor's demonstration against the Superintendent was due, of course, to the irritation caused by the close proximity of the object of wrath. With the irri-tant away it was possible for the Mayor to give and an analysis of the Superintendent from his point of view. The analysis, the Mayor said, disclosed a "swelled head." The Mayor relieved his paint to the reporters who called on him to sel; him if he had received the resignation of the Superintendent.

'No," he said, sadly. "No, I did not receive the resignation of Superintendent Constable in the morning mail, and I'm pretty sure he won't call in person with it. I do not expect his resignation, and should be very much surprised to receive it. Constable isn't built that way. His head is too big. He won't resign. I don't know that I should remove him if I had the power. He is an honest man, I believe, but personally he is very distasteful to me. I should not remove any man for personal reasons. It's a fact that I have received more complaints about Constable's department than all the other departments of the city Government put to-gether; but they are mostly complaints of the arrogant and insulting manner in which people are treated when they call at the Building

The fact is," said the Mayor, continuing his The fact is, said the Mayor, continuing his analysis, "Constable has got a swelled head. Now, about that affair yesterday, the whole thing is this: Constable hasn't been near this office since the 10th of January, when Mr. Mayer was appointed counsel to the Building Department. All the communication there has been between us has been carried on by mail. I didn't give him a chance to talk to me yesterday about anything. I told him his presence was distasteful to me, and I wanted him to go away and communicate in writing whatever he had to say, and I hope to God you'll never set foot in this office again,' I told him. But, aside from everything else, Constable's manner is distasteful to me. I dislike him personally, and I don't want to have any personal communication with him whatever."

"What made you appoint him I" asked one reporter, intercupting his Hone's current of thought. There was a moment of silence. Finally the Mayor said:

"Oh, I'm responsible for him, I appointed him, When his name was suggested I sent for him and had a talk with him, and I appointed him because I thought from the way he talked he was a good man for the place."

The Mayor heaved six sighs in succession, and for a full half minute his whiskers rested in his shirt bosom. When he recovered again he said resignedly:

"I have been very good to Constable, I gave analysis, "Constable has got a swelled head, shirt bosom. When he recovered again he said resignedly:

"Thave been very good to Constable. I gave him all the money he wanted, notwithstanding the fact that I don't like his conduct. He never would have got the good treatment he got from the Hoard of Estimate if it hadn't been for me. The other members of the board were surprised at the way I stood up for him, but I believed that he was honest and that the money would be spent the right way."

There was another period of silence. The Mayor heaved some more sighs and said:

There was another period of silence. The Mayor heaved some more sighs and said:
"If Constable has a disagreeable manner I suppose he can't help it. It's hardly his fault."
All I want him to do, if he can't mend his ways, is to stay away from here."
This ended the analysis. All that the Mayor said afterward was that Mr. Constable's speech accusing him of having violated the building law had nothing to do with his feeling toward the Superintendent. After the Mayor had made his statement everybody wanted to know what effect it would have on Mr. Constable. This Sun reporter tried to assertiain, but Mr. Constable himself was inaccessible and nobody about the Building Department dared discuss the subject.

"The question now is," said another city offirine question now is, said another city offi-cial yesterday, "what ought an official to do when he is damned by his superior! It certainly calls for some action. Now, in the South, where I come from, the remedy would be pistols and coffee for two. I don't suppose that would do up here; but if a man wants to hold his job and maintain his dignity, too, he's got to do some-thing." was reported last night that Mr. Constable

Beginning with to-day the firm composed of Charles Neukirch and Edward H. Myers will no longer bear the title of Theodore W. Myers & Co. For the present it will be called Myers & Co. The dropping of "Theodore W." was the gesult of a letter written to the firm by ex-Compbroller Theodore W. Myers on April 23, calling attention to the following provision in the agreement under which he allowed the use of his name:

his name:
It is further understood that neither of the parties to this agreement shall do anything whataoever by which the name of the house or his own name shall be injuriously affected, or placed in jeopardy, in default of which the other party shall have the right to discontinue the use of such name. Theodore W. Myers's letter continues:

While I do not desire to pass any judgment upon the merits of the recent involvements which have come upon you, and have every confidence that you will entirely justify your course, I am obliged to re-quest that you discontinue the use of the firm name of Theodore W. said date.

The charge of fraud against Charles Neukirch which led to his expuision from the Stock Exchange on Wednesday was Indi before the Governing Committee of the Exchange on April 14. Mr. E. H. Myers said yesterday that an amount in excess of $15,000 yearly had been paid to Theodore W. Myers for the use of his name under an agreement to continue for three years, with the option of an extension.

CHEERS FOR MAYOR WURSTER.

They Greeted His Announcement That He Would Veto the Shore Parkway IIIII.

Mayor Wurster of Brooklyn gave a hearing vesterday on the Parshall bill, which provided for the retirement of the Commissioners who have had charge of the shore parkway and the appointment of their successors by the Mayor, County Register, and County Clerk. There was a big delegation on hand in opposition to the measure, and not a single person appeared as its measure, and not a single person appeared as its champion.

Mayor Wurster said: "I had hoped that some person who favored the bill would have communicated the reason it was considered necessary. It is evident that Mr. Parshall, the father of the bill, is ashamed of his child. There could be but one reason for such a measure, and that was to obtain political patronage, but patronage secured through such a measure would be an injury to any political party responsible for it. In the interest of the party I will veto the bill."

Shore Commissioner Kennedy remarked: "Now I want to make my speech. Let us give three cheers for Mayor Wurster."

The cheers were given with a will. three cheers for Mayor Wurster. The cheers were given with a will.

Browned Man with His Picture in His Pocket. A drowned man, about 40 years old, of medium height, light complexion, brown hair and mustache, and wearing a blue suit and a blue outing shirt, was found yesterday in the East River at the foot of Clinton street, Brooklyn, and taken to the Morgue. A photograph, which was evi-dently that of the drowned man, was found in his pocket. It had the name A, Russier Ban-berg written on the back.

The Latest Drama by Gerhart Hauptman

Acted in German. Another play by Gorhart Hauptmann was seen here Thursday when Agnes Sorma and the company of the Irving Place Theatre appeared in "The Sunken Bell." The drama has been a sensational success in Germany, and that result was undoubtedly gained in a measure by the dispute which arose over the awarding of the Schiller prize, for which the work was submitted. The committee awarded the honor to this play of Hauptmann's, but the Emperor reversed their decision and selected a drama by Wildenbruch, the author of a long series of thresome dramas that extol the achievements of the Hohenzollern dynasty. On the production of the plays Haupt mann's was the popular success and it had been acted in most of the German theatres. In Paris

it falled ignominiously.
"The Sunken Bell" was acted here before an audience that might have been supposed to accept it in the same mood that it would have met in any German town. The fame of the play had made the spectators attentive if not reverent in any German town. The fame of the play had made the spectators attentive if not reverent in auvance, and the place of Hauptmann in German literature makes every work from his pen certain to gain a careful hearing. On Thursday night the drama was aided in its interpretation by a brilliantly artistic performance from Agnes Sorma and a production which in its entirety was splendidly creditable to Manager Conreid. The play was received with some enthusiasm, and it undoubtedly made some impression on the audience. But for that result Frau Sorma's acting and Manager Conreid's efforts were chiefy responsible.

If "The Sunken Bell" may be taken as an indication of the tendency of Hauptmann's genius, he is becoming more of a poet and less of a dramatist with every succeeding work. "The Sunken Bell" has only one really dramatic episode, and that closes the second of the five acts of the play. The rest was scarcely more than dialogue at any point. There was no single element of the interest that makes a play, and the long, inactive scenes, with all their beauty and poetry of language, are not for the stage Without Agnes Sorma acting as Rautendeleis and the resthetic manner of the play's presentation, "The Sunken Bell" would never have been tolerated by last night's audience. This may not be a fair test, but it shows at least the innately undramatic character of the work.

The story of the play barely indicates its un-have been tolerated by last night's audience. This may not be a fair test, but it shows at least the innately undramatic character of the work.

The story of the play barely indicates its unusual and striking routine. A founder is discovered on the top of a mountain, apparently dying from the effects of a fall down the rocks. He has just moulded a bell which is to make him famous and the mountain fairies have thrown it into the lake. One of them, Rautendelein, falls in love with him, and follows him back to his home in the village. She cures him of his illness, makes him stronger than ever, and falling into her power he goes back with her to the mountains, determined to make a bell which shall be finer still. He leaves his wife and children, tells the priest who comes to reason with him that he will build a temple in the mountain not to God, but to the sun, and leaves the fairy Rautendelein, only to return and die at her feet. She has in the meant time become the wife of the Spirit of the Well.

With this slight story told in language that was at times beautifully poetic there was the accompaniment of fairies, of the Spirit of the Well. With this slight story told in language that was at times beautifully poetic there was the accompaniment of fairies, of the Spirit of the Spient of the work was expressed with the greatest fineness. The weind, semi-human atmosphere of the work was expressed with the greatest fineness and the acting was faultless in almost every particular. But as a whole the significance of the drama was utterly incomprehensible to nine out of every ten persons who sat in the audience last night. Maybe the futility of human ambition, the fruitless hope of achievement or the deepair of love may have been meant by the episode of Heiarich, the bell maker, and of Rautendelein, the fairy. But this remains a matter of conjecture, and the performance concluded at a late hour on Thursday night for speculation on the subject. It cannot be a fault of a masterplece of any kind to be comprehensible. "Th to be comprehensible. "The Sunken Bell," with all its delicacy and poetry, is not that. The difficulties of presenting such a play are enormous, and they were not only overcome wonderfully, but were made the source of unusually beautiful and artistic sights. The management of the lights was alone a revelation, and the mountain forest, the Spirit of the Well, slimy and uncanny, and the hoofed faun were details of a performance that was wholly admirable. Agnes Sorma was a lovely figure as Rautendelein, and therefore the such as a lovely figure as Rautendelein, and its variety and delicacy as iridescent and sparkling as a bubble. Its deeper shades were as sincerely and genuinely indicated. To her belongs the greatest share of the success that the performance of "The Sunken Bell" won last night.

A little later shipments may be made upo more advantageous terms, owing in part to the steady falling off in the exports of general merchandise and the enormous increase in the volume of imports during the last few weeks. Some interesting statistics of the for-eign trade movement are printed in the news columns of THE SUN. It may be noted also that during the week ending to-night the Clearing House banks have lost approximately $4,500,000 to the Sub-Tressury, nearly all of it in payment of duties. The unexpectedly large ship-ment of specie to-morrow intensified the dulness that has provailed on the Stock Exchange all the week. Sugar Refining attained a double distinct tion to-day, being the only stock in which the transactions exceeded 10,000 shares, and also the only one that closed higher than yesterday Selling of the anthracite shares was the only other noteworthy feature of the market. Jersey Central lost 14 $ cent., and a moderate revival of activity in Lackawanna left that stock more than a point lower than yesterday. Western Union continued to feel the effects of a pronounced bearish sentiment, while the market for Chicago Gas reflected the constantly changing views of professional traders as to the outlook for the passage by the Illinois Legislature of the measure providing for the consolidation of the Chicago gas companies. Final prices, which as a rule were somewhat botter than the lowest, showed fractional not declines. Final sales compare with those of yesterday as follows:

clearances can take place only after the Northwestern wheat reaches tidewater. California amounced lack of rain there still, but the Modera Miller, in its weekly summary, said the damage on the coast had been exaggerated. Deliveries to-morrow will be small, possibly no wheat deliveries at all. In that event, everybody will understand better that our spot is commanding a premium and the futures will feel the effect of it. Corn—it was a changing market in corn, with enough people anxious to buy May and sell July to, at times, a little narrow the spread. There was a fair soot demand. The unseasonable weather had a steadying influence. Cables were practically unchanged. Scaboard clearances were 888,000 bush. There will be fair deliveries of corn to morrow, and with good weather, possibly some new May weakness. There is nothing builfsh about the prospect unless the season should prove a mean one for the farmers. Oats—There was just such a time in oats as in corn, the whole market being given up to changing. The inspection was 252 cars, with 24.5 estimated for to-morrow. Seaboard clearances were 233,000 bush. Deliveries to-morrow will be liberal. The season, so far, has been backward. Brudarteer's reports that the exports of wheat flour included as wheat from both coasts of the United States amount to only 1,155-856 bush, this week, against 1,654,000 bush, last week, 1,260,000 bush, in the week a year ago, 2,773,000 bush in the like week in 1993. The current week's exporte of wheat (flour included) are the smallest since the second week in May, 1991. Exports of Indian corn have also failen off this week, amounting to 8,657,405 bush, against 4,760,000 bush, in the week a year ago, 1,016,000 bush. In the Week a year ago, 2,773,000 bush in the tilke week in 1993. The current week's exporte of wheat (flour included) are the smallest since the second week in May, 1991. February. 7.05@7.07

The speculation in cotton to-day was moderately active. The market was rather feverial and the fluctuations in orders were frequent, but during most of the day were confined within comparatively narrow limits. Liverpool and New Orleans isought and send the day were declined in syling orders. Early in the day prices declined in sympathy with a declined in Astrophysics. Early in the day prices declined in sympathy with a declined in Astrophysics. He close, however, the less was recovered on local and New Orleans knying, and a slight advance followed.

Copyrag-Ride on the spet was firm, No. 7. 77@8bc, Sales, 500 bags No. 7 at No. 1, 100 bags Maracalbo, 1,300 bags fluctuatings, and 700 bags Central American on private terms. The future trading was as follows:

with sales of 10,500 bags. Havre advanced $4f$. Hamburg was unchanged to $5 pfg. higher. Rio was quiet at unchanged to $5 pfg. higher. Rio was quiet at unchanged prices; receipts, 0,000; stock, 247,000; exchange, 7 28-39d., a decline of 1.16d. Santoe was steady and unchanged receipts, 5,000; stock, 428,000. The higher European cables, together with covering of shorts, caused the advance to-day. There was very little disposition to sell.

NAVALSTORE—Unchanged.

PETHOLEUM—Crude certificates were unquoted here and in oil City. Refined unchanged.

PROVIDORS—Lard stronger; prime, 4,40c. Pork dull but firm. Mess. 88, 756,88,955. Tallow, 53,693 31-100. Butter—Creamery, Western, 17c. Reges—State, fresh gathered, 104,104c. Chicago, April 80.—An advance in the priors of hogs caused provisions to rule a little higher and closed at a small improvement. The builk of the trading was in the way of changing, preparing for the May deliveries. Some demand from local shorts and a large local trader helped to sustain the marked. Now that the May liquidation is out of the way octain operators look for this market to do better, but liberal hog receipts and the poor cash demand are likely to check an advance at this time.

SCHAR—RAW firm but quiet: 89 test, 24,687 13-16c.; 100 cases 1805 New England and Havana at 196,20c.; 100 cases 1895 New England Havana at 196,20c.; 100 cases 1895 New England and leaf at 14c.; 100 cases 1895 New England in the long at 14c.; 100 cases 1895 New England in the long at 14c.; 100 cases 1895 New England in the long at 14c.; 100 cases 1895 New England in the long at 14c.; 100 cases 1895 New England in the long at 160 cases 1895 New England in the long at 160 cases 1895 Summers at 10g18c.; 200 bales Havana at 6c., 281,10, the bond, and you bales Summers, 10 day of prioss.
